NATION PAYS HOMAGE AT GRAVE OF EDISON

Mrs. Herbert Hoover Represents President At Services For Man Who Devoted His Life to Invention

By SIDNEY B. YHIPPLE

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 22.—(UP)—As the last red rays of a setting sun faded in the west and a white moon rose to cast strange illumination on his flower-strewn grave, the body of Thomas Alva Edison was lowered today into a underground vault in Rosedale cemetery.

There was no outward manifestatino of grief or emotion. The silent, black-garbed figures of the Edison family and of those friends who joined with them in today's tribute stirred only slightly as the Rev. Stephen J. Herben read a closing prayer and then dropped two white roses on the bronze casket. Then each member of the family in turn walked slowly to the grave and cast a flower upon the evergreen covered couch.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover, representing the President of the United States, stood for a moment or two beside the grave, then turned and walked to her car, which was waiting to take her to the railway station. she was unable to remain for the burial service.

At the left of the president's tribute was placed a wreath of orchids, gardenias and heather. The personal selection of Mrs. Hoover, and at the foot of the grave, stretching upward in six feet of beauty was a colorful gift of orchids from Edison's other close friend, Harvey Firestone.

In the deepening dusk, the Rev. Herben stood facing the family group, his gray locks tumbling in the breeze, and read the brief service of committal. A short poem, called "Just Asleep," and bearing the h ope of eternal life, was recited just before the benediction.

The group of mourners at the cemetery, much smaller than the 400 friends who gathered at Lewellyn Park earlier in the afternoon, had been driven through impressively massed crowds of townspeople, lining the sidewalks from the park to the foot of the hill on which Edison is to sleep.

Few of the notables who attended the services at the house were present at the graveside. Only the families of Firestone and Ford, forming a triumvirate of genius with that of Edison, shared that last duty and privilege with the immediate relatives.

Ford looked weary and careworn, of all those who were close to the Great Inventor, he had been the only one steadfastly to refuse to look upon his face now that he was gone.

"I prefer to remember him as I last saw him, his eyes flashing full of spirit and fire," he said.

Throughout the earlier ceremony, Mrs. Hoover in deep black, had sat close to Mrs. Edison, in the upstairs hall of the old-fashioned mansion, listening to the music and psalms and prayers below. A microphone, concealed near the bier, caught each measured word and carried i t to the family above. On either side of her were Firestone and Ford, with bowed heads.

Mrs. Hoover had hoped to remain throughout the ceremony. The lateness of the arrival at Rosedale cemetery, however, forced her to pay a last hurried tribute and depart.

The nation's notables came and went unostentatiously and, in many cases, almost unnoticed. They mingled with the simpler friends of Edison in the crowded conservatory, the dark-panelled reception hall, and the drawing room where the bier had been placed in a flowered alcove.

Kiwanians Hear Talk on Growth

A talk on the industrial development of the peninsula and its relation to San Francisco, particularly with the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, was given before members of the Redwood City Kiwanis club at the regular weekly meeting of that organization Wednesday. The speaker was George Pressley, vice-president and manager of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Pressley told the Kiwanians that the future of the peninsula and that of San Francisco are one and the same, and that San Francisco does not regard development of the peninsula as competative development, but rather as a necessary part of her own future. He also talked concerning the present depression and compared it with other depressions, particularly that which followed the Nepolionic wars in Europe, and showed that the world is much better able to face depression today than it was at that time.

The chairman of the meeting was Howard Wood, secretary-manager of the Redwood City Chamber of Commerce.

Leonard Casanova, head football coach at the Sequoia Union High School, and Albert Terrimere, assistant coach, were present as guests of the club, and spoke on the football situation at the high school, where prospects are bright for winning a league championship. The coaches urged the members of the club to attend the games and to encourage the members of the team in their efforts.

LEAGUE DEMANDS JAPAN WITHDRAW FROM CHINA

Russia Ready For Action Against Japan In Manchuria if Demand of League is Ignored

MANCHURIA, Oct. 22.—(UP)—The "Big Five" of the League of Nations Council decided to vote on a resolution demanding withdrawal of Japanese troops from Manchuria, unless expected instructions from Tokio on Thursday open the way for a peace settlement. Japan may defy the council by opposing the resolution.

Tokio advices said Soviet Russia, which has watched the Manchurian conflict in silence, had sent a representative to confer at Mukden and Peiping, where Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian ruler, has headquarters.

Chinese national government officials welcome rebel Canton representatives in a move for unification of China's hostile factions. Both China and Japan assured world powers in reply to notes on the anti-war treaty that they had no intention of waging war.

Announcement of the decision climaxed by a day of fruitless negotiation, in which both China and Japan again presented opposing demands for a settlement of their differences. It was pointed out that new Japanese instructions are expected from Tokio early tomorrow in another effort to render a settlement possible, but if this fails the council will meet to vote on the resolution demanding withdrawal of troops.

The United States representative at the council table, Prentiss B. Gilbert, does not have a vote.

The Chinese memorandum, resented to Aristide Briand, was believed by some members to have forced the council to decide between inducing Japan to recede from her position, or to adjourn for a few weeks as a concession to the devious and drawn-out method of oriental negotiation.

Various smaller nations represented on the council were understood to have opposed adjournmentt vigorously, arguing that the league is facing a critical test of its ability to maintain peace and that such a move would be prejudicial to the league, particularly since the United States is represented at the council table at present. China also opposed the adjournment suggestion.

China's memorandum to Briand provided:

(1) Peace negotiations must be based on immediate evacuation of Manchuria by Japan. (Japan has said she would evacuate only after guarantees of complete security have been given.

(2) Neutral investigations of the crisis must be started after evacuation. (Japan has demanded direct negotations rather than intervention by a third party).

(3) Japan must recognize China's demand for reparations.

(4) A permanent Chinese-Japanese board of counciliation and arbitration must be established.

Earlier, after a meeting of the British, French, German, Spanish and Italian members of the council, the Japanese had reiterated their opposition to withdrawal of troops, insisting that the present situation centers on the South Manchuria railway, controled by Japan. They charged that the Chinese had systematically undertaken a campaign of violence againt Japanese railroad guards.

'China must act to stop hostilities before troops can be withdrawn," the statement said.

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct 22 — (UP)—A force of 1,200 disbanded Chinese soldiers clashed with Japanese railroad guards in the Ransi Shi-Han district today.

Japanese officials at Murkden dispatched an armoured train with reinforcements to the scene of the fighting, 32 miles north of here.

The Chinese soldiers had attempted to cross the South Manchuria railway, guarded by Japanese troops, when the fighting began. The Chinese were said to have cut telegraph and telephone lines.

SHANGAHI, China, Oct. 21—(UP) —China tonight began a determined attempt to unite her hostile military and political leaders against the threat of Japanese forces in Manchuria.

Inaguraing one of the most significant unification movements since the revolution, the leaders of the national government at Nanking received the representatives of the rival Canton government in an effort to end the unsettled condition which has existed between the Northern and Southern factions.

The Cantonese representatives arrived on the liner President Madison and were cheered by thousands of Chinese, including labor leaders, members of the national peoples party, and government officials. The visitors included Sun Fo, son of the late Sun Yat Sen, first president of China, Wu Chao-Chu, former minister to the United States, and Wans Ching-Wei, who was once Chinese representative on the world court.

They were authorized to open peace negotiations, continuing parleys begun recently at Canton, and later will go to Nanking to talk with

Middle Age

Reaching middle age, according to the state board of health, is a critical time in the life of a man, but not one to worry about. That is if one knows how to "take it easy" and adjust one's habits of life in accordance. The United Press brings the following from the state health department:

"When a man reaches middle age he perhaps for the first time realizes what it means to grow old. This fact becomes evident in ways he cannot overlook. He begins to notice that his body is no longer capable of doing those things he previously could do with ease. He finds his habits must be changed if he would maintain physical well-being."

Breifly "middle age means the individual must realize he has passed the apex of his life and is now on the downward incline, the board pointed out. Such a thought often implies a profound readjustment in his outlook upon life, sometimes with considerable mental disturbances. The wise person readjusts himself accordingly, refuses to worry, and maintains mental poise.

"His adjustments mean largely modification in his thinking, and in his habits of eating, drinking, sleeping and exercise," the statement continued. "He finds he can no longer eat as he once did, and as a matter of fact doesn't need as much food as he once consumed. He must give greater care to his sleeping and secure a complete night's rest.

"He can no longer safely indulge in strenuous excerise. Making a sudden sprint to catch a streetcar is no longer an innocuous pastime; it may be highly dangerous. One finds himself obliged to consider many things never before given a thought, or pay the penalty. It is no longer wise to live at high pressure. Life must flow with more ease and more deliberation."

The state physicians believe that a man is not so much as old as his years as he is as old as his body. The old saying that a man is as old as his arteries is an apt one, they say, as heart and arteries are necessary to existence, and when they change in later life they are no longer capable of meeting demands formely made upon them.

"Specific rules as to adjustments that must be made for middle age must be avoided," the board concluded. "There is, however, one general rule applicable not only to this subject but also to many other problems of hygienic living, and that is the rule of moderation—the golden mean, moderation in all things. It is usually the excess which does the harm."

Women to Preach Thrift

Woman's organizations throughout the country are planning this winter to devote at least part of their energies to preaching the homely virtues of thrift, an olf-fashioned virtue which has come back into public favor during the past two years.

As slogans for the thrift campaign, the women will use two quotations, one from George Washington's contribution and the other from Benjamin Franklin. Washington's contribution is this: "Economy makes happy homes and sound nations." Franklin's is: "If you know how to spend less than you get, you have the philosopher's stone."

As a basis for the campaign, an article by Walter Lippman in the Woman's Home Companion is recommended. Mr. Lippman, for instance suggests:

"There have been some economists in recent years who have preached the doctrine of high spending as the means to prosperity. They are, I think, dead wrong in their economic analysis. I know they are wrong as guides to practical human conduct. In the art of spending, wisdom lies in remaining comfortably within the minimum of one's earnings or income.

"The hoary rules of prudence have in our day acquired an air of niggardliness and timidity. Better, we say to ourselves, to live dangerously, without too much calculation, making the most of what the day can bring, and to let the future come: it will find us gay and generous and unafraid. That is a good philosophy. But those who most need to understand the meaning of prudence do not live gayly and generously and unafraid.

"Prudence in spending is a fundamental practical virtue in a civilization like ours where no one's position is permanent and there is great fluctuation in almost everyone's personal fortunes. Amidst uncertainty prudence is the virtue by which each man does what he can to free himself from the effects of uncertainty and thus to remain in some measure the master of his fate."

Salary cuts are economically unsound and socially unjust, declared 2,500 business and professional women of the United States during the closing session of their biennial convention at Richmond, Va.

Statistics show that wives get sixty-five per cent of the divorces, and one hundred per cent of the alimony.

Looking Out for Bandits

California's famous winter climate, according to Charles Stone, assistant chief of the bureau of criminal identification at Sacramento, attracts many undesirable citizens as well as the desirable type, and therefore, he believes it is well to be prepard for the former group.

As a result he has prepared a list of "don'ts" to be followed.

1. Beware of picking up hitch-hikers, especially after dark, even if they appear to deserve a lift.

2. Remember, you are never safe in a parked car. A large percentage of holdup victims are occupants of parked automobiles.

3. Do not carry large sums of money. Thieves are well informed concerning the identity of affluent persons.

4. It is useless to believe the toe of your shoe or your hat band are safe places to hide valuables. The modern highwayman is a psychologist and can easily interpret empty pockets as indicating concealed money.

5. It is most unwise to wear diamond rings, but, if they must be worn the stones should be kept out of sight.

6 Avoid dark streets and dodge men walking in pairs, especially if they separate in passing you.

7. If accustomed to carrying a gun, do not draw it unless you have a decided advantage. Many bandits are narcotic addicts and are notorious for shooting on the slightest provocation.

8. Keep your garage locked, particularly during the day. Many bandits specialize in lurking in garages, awaiting the arrival of the car owners.

9. Memorize the numbers and identify marks of your watch and other valuables so you may aid authorities in their recovery of it if stolen.

10. Report suspicious characters, especially those loitering in residential districts, to the police. It may save loss of valuables from your home.

The Editorial Circuit Rider

(A symposium of editorial comment from California Newspapers.)
By MELVIN LORD

The present depression and its accompanying lack of employment may be traced in part to the failure of the United States to enforce immigration laws.

This is the opinion of many California editors. The correction of the situation facing the country at the present time admittedly includes a score of factors, but the problem of immigration should be one of the first to be considered, according to the editors.

"The departure of thousands of Mexican nationals to their homeland will alleviate conditions here in the labor market," points out the Martinez Gazette.

"The times will change again, however, but before the lure of California again takes hold the government of the United States should provide some effective means for checking Mexicans filtering across the border and admit only those whom can give assurance that they will not become public charges."

In commenting favorably on the proposed passage of an alien registration law, The Berkeley Daily Gazette says:

"Our past negligence in unrestricted admission of European riffraff and our further laxity in not keeping track of the aliens in our midst, are responsible in no small measure for many of our labor problems and criminal difficulties.

Prolongation of the present depression and continued growth of criminal activities would be certain to focus public attention upon universal registration and hasten the day of its adoption in the United States."

Again referring to the Mexican problem, The San Jose News says: "Every time we see these dilapidated cars coming up from Mexico, filled with men, women and children, we wish there was a way to prevent it so that all of that employment might be given to our own citizens."

Claims said to have been made by a committee of prominent Hawaiians that California sentiment now favors quota for Japan are refuted by the Bakersfield Californian which cites "the unanimous action of the and in 1929 opposing quota, and the failure state legislature in 1923 demanding exclusion, in 1931 to obtain sufficient encouragement to warrant introduction of a resolution favoring quota."

The Tulare Advance-Register believes, however, that "injustice and downright stupidity have been exhibited by the guardians of the gates too frequently" and that "Uncle Sam can be vigilant without being peevish."

Speaking on behalf of Canadians, The Chico Record believes them to be the "least undesireable of all imigrants," because "as Canadian news suggests, they seem to obey our laws better than we obey theirs."

Save the Ducks

Ducks have had a bad year according to official reports. Some kind of a "crisis" or depression seems to have affected the birds, and because of the cumulative effects of drought, drainage, and over-shooting, the birds are scarcer this year than for many years. Hunters are urged by the Chief of the Biological Survey at Washington to limit their kill of ducks this year.

In this trying period the warning should be passed along: Save the ducks!

One of the largest banks in New York City has requested its savings depositors to withdraw all their savings, expect perhaps $1,000 and put the money into circulation as a means of restoring trade confidence.

GAY ADVENTURERS

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

SHEILA ALLEN, bound for Europe in a tourist cabin, has a cabinmate,

CONSTANCE KERR, a millionaire's daughter, who is her twin in looks. Sheila, after years in a rural town, is seeking adventure.

She has refused to marry her guardian, YOUNG DOCTOR MALCOM BAXTER. Constance tells Sheila she is Heaven-sent-a means of escape from a terrible mess.

Constance is fleeing from her husband, THE COUNT DE BELLEFONTE, whom she married that morning.

She consented to marry him ,after a quarrel with HARRY EDMONDS, with whom she is desperately in love.

His letters begging her forgiveness are kept from her by her mother. She finds them immediately after her marriage. Realizing that she can never be the Count's wife, she takes passage for Europe at once. Harry is in England.

She begs Sheila to impersonate her in Paris for a few days, while she seeks Harry in London, to try to find a way out of her muddle.

Sheila, scenting adventure agrees. Constance gives Sheila her clothes and coaches her for the role she is to play. A first-class passenger.

TOMMY FITZGERALD, an old beau of Constance's, sees Sheila and hails her as Constance. Sheila tells him he has made a mistake.

At Southampton Constance leaves the ship as Sheila Allen, with all of Shelia's effects, including her passport.

At Harve, Fitzgerald sees Sheila with Constance's passport and she says she is the heiress, and explains the tourist passage as payment of a bet. A strange woman embraces her as an old friend.

There she receives a message from the Count, who is in Paris.

Harry Edmonds arrives in Paris. Sheila is panic-stricken. She wonders where Constance is.

To escape both Harry and the informs her aunt in Baden-Baden that her neice is ill. The aunt radios Mr. Kerr, who radios Sheila that he is coming to Paris.

She succeeds in convising Aunt Sophia that her presence is not required in Paris. A message from Mr. Kerr tells that the his yacht is disabled and that he cannot come to Paris for some time.

Harry urges her to marry him immediately. She puts him off.

The Baronne is angry, for she wants a clear field for her stepson, CARLO, whom she is anxious to marry off.

To keep Harry pacified, Sheila agrees to announcing their engagement shortly.

Harry denies this and the Count challenges him to a duel.

Sheila, in desperation, to prevent the duel, confesses that she is not Constance Kerr.

Thecount sends for Constance's aunt, stying that she will know her own niece. The old lady, on arriving, is not told what has happened, and she accepts Sheila without question.

The result is that the Count, Harry and the Baronne agree that Sheila is temporarily unbalanced.

Chapter No. 36—

She finds herself virtually a prisoner, with a physician and nurses in atendance.

Constance meanwhile is in London.

She learns that Harry is in Paris

She prepares to leave for Paris.

But is run down by a taxi and seriously injured.

He prepares to go to London.

Dr. Mac decides to take her home.

Suddenly her memory returns.

She explains the entire situation to him later.

CHAPTER 57.

"WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?"

Sheila saw the look of resentment in Dr. Mac's eyes. Instinctively she knew what he was thinking. And the realization hurt her unspeakably.

"You must let me explain" she said. "It isn't that I want to keep up this masquerade. I told these people weeks ago that I wasn't Constance Kerr, but they wouldn't believe me. They think I'm unbalanced, or trying to play a joke on them, or something. I've been virtually a prisoner here. And, all the while, I've been so worried about Constance that the whole thing has been a nightmare. I'd go home with you this second, if I could."

"Then why do you hesitate, when I offer to help you?"

"Because of Constance," she cried, "and Harry. Constance doesn't want him to learn of her marriage until she can tell him herself. She probably told you the whole story—how she immediately regretted her folly, and ran away from the Count right after the ceremony, hoping to find Harry and beg his forgiveness. I don't know how she expects to get out of this mess—perhaps she hopes that her father will help her obtain an annullment. At any rate, I must act with the greatest discretion, or the Count is likely to announce the marriage publicly, and I'm afraid to think what Harry would do then."

She sat down on the edge of the fountain and ran her hand through the cool water.

Dr. Mac bent over her. "Sheila," he said softly, "I don't know what to say—or how to tell you of my regret for having misjudged you so."

"I know," she said. "You thought I was in love with Bellefonte, didn't you?"

He nodded shemefacedly, too abashed to notice the look of happiness that stole over her face.

"And I was beginning to think that you liked this luxurious, pleasant life so much that you were willing to carry on the masquerade as long as you could," he muttered. "Oh, Sheila, if you think so badly of me now as I do of myself, you'll never speak to me again."

Sheila's eyes were aglow with happiness. She rose and took a step toward him. Then she drew back. "Let's not talk about that," she said demurely, "until we have decided what to do about Constance."

"I'll write her at once—or rather, we'll write her," he suggested. "We'll tell her how you've caried on, what the situation is here, and ask her whether she wants to come to Cannes. If she does—and I think she's well enough now to travel—perhaps we can arrange to meet her and to make a quick change, as it were. Then she'll be Constance Kerr, once more, and you'll be Sheila Allen and free to do as you please."

"Free to do as I please," said Sheila reflectively. "Do you know, Malcolm, I think I've had enough freedom to last me a lifetime?"

"Sheila," exclaimed Dr. Mac incredulously.

She looked up at him shyly, and the expression in her eyes made him take her in his arms. All the fine phrases that he had rehearsed for this moment left his mind.

"We'll go to Italy for our honeymoon," he managed to say finally.

And Sheila, who had always had very definite opinions as to how a proposal for marriage should be made, accepted this observation as a completely romantic declaration.

"But let's go to some place where we can live very quietly," mormured Sheila. "I'm so tired of all this—this grandness."

They stood in silence before the fountain, watching the fish swim round and round the little basin. Finally Dr. Mac said:

"But are you sure that you can go back to just ordinary living, after this taste of the sort of life you always wanted?"

She nodded. "More than sure. I've had my fling, and what a madventure it was — still is, for it's not yet over. But nothing more can possibly happen. Once we've heard from Constance we'll be free to make our own plans."

They walked on through the beautiful grounds and returned to the rose-garden just as the Count, who had been fretting at Sheila's absence, was telling Harry and the Barronne that he was going out to find her.

"Heavens," said Sheila, as they passed the sun-dial, "the others will be wondering where we are, and Harry and Bellefonte will be furious at you."

Dr. Mac grinned. "It's not so funny," she warned him. "They almost fought a duel over me — or Constance, as you please. And you'll have to be very casual toward me, or there may be trouble again."

"I'll be discretion itself, if you'll kiss me now," he promised, putting his arm about her and raising her face to his.

The sound of footsteps on the little staircase that led to the terrace caused hem to glance up. There stood the Count and one of the gardeners.

"You will remember this, Salvator,' said the Count grimly. "This pretty incident that we have just witnessed."

Dr. Mac began to speak, but Sheila silenced him with a gesture.

"Don't make a tiresome scene, Jean," she said evenly. "I'm tired of your dramatics."

"And I am tired of your flirtations," he retorted. "And of you, too. So, after what I have seen just now, in the presence of this witness, I think I will strike a bargain with you. If you wish to pay for it, you may have your freedom.

County is Tenth In California in Taxible Wealth

County's Property Wealth Set At $71,005,814 by State Controller's Report

By HOMER L. ROBERTS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 22—(UP)—San Mateo county, with a total property wealth of $71,005,814, ranked tenth among the counties of California this year, with its tax rate of $2,895 per $100 on property inside of incorporated cities and $3,295 outside.

State Controller Ray L. Riley announced these figures in his annual report on the value of property in the counties of California.

Los Angeles county, the largest county in the state, both in point of population and total property value, held the record for the lowest county tax rate, the report said.

This was $1,334 for property inside of cities, and $1,484 for property outside.

The next lowest county was Kern, which on account of its rich oil fileds, has long held the record for low tax rates. This year Kern showed a rate of $1.45 inside of cities and $1.60 outside.

San Francisco held the distinction of having the highest tax rate for an incorporated city in the state, of $4.04 per $100 of assessed value.

However, this figure represents the rate for both city and county. Of a total of $201,724,158 in bonded debt for the 58 counties of California, $152,599,300 is charged against San Francisco alone.

The next highest rates were in Nevada and Trinity counties, with $4.00 each.

California's total taxable wealth went well over the 9 billion dollar mark—the exact figure being $9,042,188,441.

Fourteen California counties were shown to be without debt at the present time. These were Amador, Calaveras, Humboldt, Inyo, Madera, Mariposa, Mono, Nevada, Placer, Shasta Sierra, Siskiyou, Tuolumne and Yuba.

It is an important question because, for most of us, life insurance provides the best way to leave an estate adequate for the family's needs. Although this Bank does not sell life insurance, it does endorse its value in the building of an estate.

Many farsighted husbands and fathers, owning adequate life insurance, are providing one additional safeguard for their families—Life Insurance Trusts with Bank of America.

C. M. Doxsee Sends Snake in Flowers

C. M. Doxsee, president of the San Mateo County Title Company is a great booster for San Mateo county products, and delights in sending them to relatives in the East to show what San Mateo county really can raise.

Recently, however, he sent a specimen which was not intended.

The Monticello Express of which C. M. Doxsee's brother is publisher tells the story in the following words:

While about her housework, one day last week, Mrs. E. E. Reed discovered a snake in her dining room. Of course she jumped; she is a woman. She eyed the reptile for a time. The reptile coiled, and raising its head eyed her in turn. Mrs. Reed stepped to the telephone and called her husband. He scoffed at the idea that there could be a snake in the house, and asked if she could not be mistaken. "No, I am not," she replied. "How could it have gotten in?" she queried. "I believe it is a rattlesnake," she said.

So Mr. Reed proceeded to his home, where he found the snake darting its tongue, and as defant as a snake can be when cornered in a strange place. It was soon killed, and examination showed it to be a strange variety unknown to Mr. Reed. That was strange, for he is something of a naturalist, being especialy up on snakeology.

Mr. Reed got a zoology text book and proceeded to classify the snake. It proved to be a variety found only on the Pacific coast. That information added to the strangeness of the episode. It appears that Mrs. Reed's brother had expressed a box of chrysanthemums from California to his Monticello relatives, which reached Monticello that morning. Mary Doxsee unpacked the flowers and carried an armful of them to Mrs. Reed, and the snake must have been in those carried to the house. When Miss Doxsee was told that she carried a snake into the house with flowers, she turned two shades p aler, and the twitch of her facial muscles indicated unpleasant thoughts of what might have happened.

Claim on Estate Is Compromised

State Takes Lead in Number of Bachelors

By HOMER L. ROBERTS

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 22.—(UP)—Look around, girls. It's simply overrun with bachelors, and you have the word of Uncle Sam for it.

Of the 2¼ million men in this state 15 years of age and older, 35 per cent are unmarried, according to figures of the United States census bureau that have just been analyzed here.

On the other hand, 57 per cent of the men are married, 4.4 per cent widowed, and 2.6 per cent divorced.

Figures for San Mateo county showed a total of 11,642 men in the "bachelor' class. The county also has 18,479 married men, 1,078 widows, and 648 divorced.

Proof that there are more 'repeaters" for marriage among the men than there is among the women is disclosed in the figures showing that the number of widowed women in California is almost three times that of the widowed men.

"This doesn't mean that fewer wives are dying than husbands," said one of the state officials. "It merely proves that a widowed man is three times more likely to marry again than a woman bereft of her husband."

The total number of males in California 15 years or over was set by the census enumerators at 2,285,734. Of t his number, 808,399 were single, 1,307,050 were married, 100.012 were widowed, and 59,586 divorced.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

By RONALD WAGONER

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22—(UP)—Small roles in pictures have taken the place of screen tests at Paramount's studios.

Selection of new featured players will be made this way. The advantages are said to be many since such work gives studio officials a chance to study the players's work "under fire."

Formerly many discoveries were made of players appearing in short subjects.

Ed Eberle, veteran character actor, summoned to Paramount studios, was told to report to the wardrobe department and makeup experts who turned him into a frock-coated, be-whiskered millionaire of 1910 vintage.

Then Eberle reported to Dorothy Arzner, director of "Working Girls," who looked him over, said "okey," and instructed an assistant to take him to the photograph gallery for a sitting.

"Ha!" mused he actor, "special still. It must be a good part."

The poses fiinished, Eberle returned to the set and waited until Miss Arzner had directed a scene with Paul Lukas, Judith Wood, Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Dorothy Hall and Stuart Erwin.

"Pardon me, Miss Arzner, when do I start work?" asked Eberle.

"You're all through before you start," explained the director. "You're the founder of this working girls' home, but you've been dead 20 years. Those stills were for enlargements to frame and hang

League Demands

Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the national government.

If they succeed in ending hostilities between these factions the central government will be in a position to crush the banditry which has ravaged interior provinces and to present a solid front in foreign difficulties.

The arrival of the Cantonese gave rise to many wild rumors, including reports that Chiang Kai-Shek and Chang Hsueh-Liang, the Manchurian ruler, would resign.

Meanwhile, the Nanking government replied to the notes received from France, Britain, Germany, Norway, Jugoslavia, Italy and Poland, reminding China of her obligaions to maintain peace under the anti-war treaty. China pledged assistance to the league of nations in solving the Manchurian crisis, assured the nations of peaceful intentions and blame Japan for the present disturbance.

The opening sessions of the Fourth Biennial Conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations added to the atmosphere of peace and understanding when both Chinese and Japanese delegates participated in round table discusions. Australia, Canada, the United States, Britain, New Zealand also were represented.

Although the opening discussions conceded trade relations among the Pacific ocean countries, the internal difficulties of China were taken up later, bearing on the present Nanking-Canton negotiations. The Manchurian crisis also will be discussed.

Jerome D. Greene of New York addressed the council, stressing the fact that a meeting of unofficial representatives of the various nations on a basis of mutual understanding and open-mindedness would go far toward settling such problems as the Manchurian conflict.

Sequoia Cagers Beat Mt. View in Double Header

Winning a double header last Tuesday on the local courts, the Sequoia high basketball teams defeated the Mountain View quintets in a pair of practice tilts. The final scores were 24 to 9 in favor of the Cherokee tens, and 22 to 2 for the Sequoia twenties.

With the exception of Charles Bendeich, center, the entire Sequoia second string played throughout the tilt. Bendeich was responsible for the majority of the Cherokee tallies, caging 18 points. George Aabel, guard, made the other 6 markers.

B. Matson, Mountain View guard, who registered 5 markers, was high-point man for that team. The other 4 points were scored by R. Fietz, gaurd.

Running up the largest score so far this season, the Sequoia 120-pound hoopsters scored 22 points, and allowed only one tally to pass through their basket. The Cherokees played a fast, smooth running defense which soon overwhelmed the slower Mountain View team.

Jack Murphy, Indian center, made 11 of Sequoia's points. J. Ingle, guard, was the only scorer of the visiting team, recording the basket which saved the Mountain View cagers from an overwhelming shut-out.

Huskies Menace Stanford Cards

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 22.—Jimmy Phelan's up and coming Huskies present the next threat to Glenn's Warner's Stanford Cardinals.

And this menace is one which Warner and his men are taking very seriously. The Indians have always found the going tough against Washington on her home field and from all reports the 1931 Huskies are preparing to 'take" Stanford. It is almost a certainty that Pop will trot out his strongest possible lineup in the Seattle Stadium Saturday afternoon.

The Oregon State games showed that there are still many rough spots to be ironed out of the Indian offense and Warner is spending most of his time this week working on this department. Washington has always been strong defensively against Stanford and Pop's scouts report that this year Phelan has developed one of the most dangerous attacks on the Pacific Coast.

The Indians, depending principally upon speed and deception in their offense, may find their style considerably cramped should they encounter rain and a wet field in the North. Washington is more accustomed to these playing conditions than Stanford. In addition, the Huskies will probably outweigh the redskins and the extra weight will count heavily on a wet field.

The record books show that since Warner came to Stanford, the Cardinals have won five games to the Huskies one. Three of the six contests have been played in Seattle. Two of the games in the North were won by Stanford with but one touchdown to spare and the third resulted in a two touchdown victory for Washington.

Following is the record of Stanford-Washington games since 1924: 1925—Stanford 0, Washington 13; 1926—Stanford 29, Washington 10; 1927—Stanford 13, Washington 7; 1928—Stanford 12, Washington 0; 1929—Stanford 6, Washington 0; 1930—Stanford 25, Washington 7.

Warner will take his squad North Thursday night and the Stanford players will probably not see the Washington Stadium until game time Saturday. Saturday's contest with the Huskies will be the second of four successive Conference battles for the redskins. TheOregon State game last Saturday was the first. The week following the Washington game, Stanford meets U. C. L. A. here and the following week, Southern California in Los Angeles.

His Men Broke Indian Charm

Coach Paul Schissler of Oregon State College, whose Beavers were first to cross the Stanford goal line this season. Schissler's men had the misfortune to meet U. S C. just after the St. Mary's upset and fell victims of the Trojan wrath. They also dropped their tilt to the Indians, but acquitted themselves well both times.

Pioneer Club Greets Leader

The Buffalo Bill Pioneers, eighteen strong, turned out to meet their new leader, Paul H. Reimer of the Bank of America, at their first meeting at the Garfield school on Wednesday evening.

This club was organized last year by C. White, who was then principal of the Garfield grammar school, under the program of the Young Men's Christian Association for boys 12 to 16 years of age. The club was outstanding in its activities and won a name for itself among the best clubs for this age boys on the peninsula. Several of the members received silver Pioneer buttons at the end of the year as a special recognition of the splendid work which they accomplished. This club not only participated in activities which were of value to boys of their age but gave service in helpfulness toward the younger boys of the Garfield school neighborhood.

Tomorrow the club will play football against the Forty-Niner Pioneer club of San Carlos at the Stanford practice field at 9 a. m.

The club will meet on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. It is open to all boys of this neighborhood between the above ages.

Roy A. Hohberger, the local Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was in carge of the meeting.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE BOASTS PROSPEROUS YEAR

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 22.—(UP)—There may be a depression on, but there was none in Pacific Coast baseball this year! The league played to its greatest attendance with the Hollywood club performing before 474,148 people, of which 301,843 were paid admissions. Portland also had a banner year under Manager Spencer Abbott. A total of 360,000 saw the Beavers play here, of which 242,000 were paid admissions.

The combination of tight races in each half of the split season and night baseball, with women admitted free every night except Saturday, the Sunday double-headers, was the reason for the record year.

The San Francisco Seals took the pennant, by winning the playoff series against Hollywood, first half winners.

She will start from Tokio along the "great circle" route to Seattle, a 4926-mile journey recently accomplished by Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, jr. Los Angeles capital is backing her in the "Miss Olympiad" venture and she will seek a $28,000 prize offered by Seattle citizens. She holds the women's altitude record of 23,000 feet for small planes. Here she is with her manager, Jospeh Martin, spotting the route on an atlas.

Lions Club Host To Hi Gridders

The members of the Sequoia High School varsity football team were guests of the Redwood City Lions Club at their dinner meeting held at the Emerald Lake Golf Club, Tuesday evening. Other special guests were Head Coach Leonard Casanova, his assistant, Al Terremere, Principal A. C. Argo and Frank J. Griffin, head of the physical education department at the high school. Talks were given by Coaches Casanova and Terremere, Mr. Argo, Mr. Griffin and James Rhoda and Jens Bugge, who spoke on behalf of the team.

Eugene Cerqui was chairman of the evening and arranged the program. The tables were decorated in the school's colors, purple and white and the football atmosphere prevailed, high school songs and yells being led by "Billy" Byrd.

The dinner for the Sequoia football team is an annual affair with the Lions Club.

Iriquois Tribe Elect Officers

Leighton Marzlin was elected Chief, Roy Coombes as Tom Tom Beater, Walter Liff for Medicine Man, Billy Zirkle as Wampum Bearer, and in the race for Indian Runner Ed Hogan came in first. Twenty-six boys are now enrolled in this organization for boys 8 to 13 years of age under the program of the Young Men's Christian Association. Roy A. Hohberger, the local Secretary of the Y. M. C. A., was present and told the boys of the plans for the Pow Wow which will be held n the Stanford campus on Saturday, November 14th. The meetings hereafter will be held on Tuesdays at 3:30 p. m.

In addition to the above officers the following boys are members of this club: Lee Devens, James Wyman, Margin Heath, Clifton Kreiss, David Marsh, Nathan Liff, Merlin Peterson, George Peterson, Donald Hogan, Billy Gould, Edward Dussan, Glenn Horwege, Carl Ziegler, Kenneth Frances, Leonard Bergman, Maurice Raffensperger, Gordon Klein, Ray Zirkle, Russell Antracoli, George Gott, Bobby Booth.

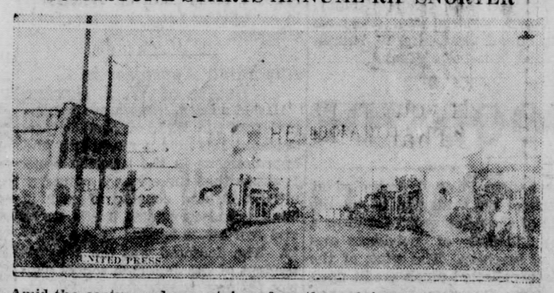
Friendly Indians of Redwood City and the vicinity will be glad to hear of theorganization of the Pawnee Friendly Indians at the Stanford Campus School on Tuesday afternoon of this week. At the request of a number of parents of boys who are in attendance at this school the tribe was started. They will make their first appearance at the Pow Wow at Stanford on November 14th. Hohberger was in charge of the organization of this group.

SOVIET SCHOOL TEACHERS GET SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

MOSCOW, Oct. 22.—(UP)— The 480000 school teachers in the Soviet Union were recently put in the same class with the most privileged proletarian elements in the matter of food rations, living quarters, and other necessities.

The government took this step with a view to improving jobs. About 70 per cent of all the teachers, 336,000 of them, are in village schools, where conditions of life are especially hard for persons sufficiently educated to be teachers.

TOMBSTONE STARTS ANNUAL RIP SNORTER



Amid the cactus and mountains of southern Arizona, the once famous silver camp of Tombstone threw aside its modern and quiet mantle over the week-end for another Helldorado celebration. The old Bird Cage Theater, where Eddie Foy performed, and the famous honky-tonks were opened. The old stage coach was robbed again, just as it was 50 years ago. A modern Wyatt Earp re-enacted his famous gun duel with an equally modern "Johnny-Behind-to-Deuce" Clanton. Water flooded the rich silver mines, and except for its annual rejuvenation, Tombstone serves mainly as a desert oasis.

Football Season Approaching Peak

The first real crop of feature football games are listed for play by leading colleges tomorrow. There was a distinct let-down one week ago but the big fellows have a splendid assortment of top attractions this week-end.

Invasion by Texas of Cambridge where the dashing south-westerners will meet up with staid Harvard (Harvard isn't so staid on the football field however) offers an attraction worth anyone's time. Because of the fact that a large number of Texans will be in Cambridge, because many of these Lone Star State football enthusiasts will be wearing enormous hats, and because men of Harvard have offered such a thoroughly cordial welcome to the visitors, the game shapes up as about the best in the East.

Other members of the East's "Big Three" have traditionally important games, with Yale meeting Army and Princeton taking on Navy.

A second intersectional of some interest is the meting of Drake from the mid-west with Fordham in New York, a third involves Wisconsin and Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, and a fourth is the meeting of Purdue and Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh.

Meantime two Eastern teams, Pitt and Georgetown go west to meet Notre Dame and Michigan State.

The Big Ten season will be in full blast with Michigan playing Ohio State, Minnesota playing Iowa, and Indiana playing Chicago.

Star Attractions On Pacific Coast

The Western coast offers enough thrills for the entire nation. Southern California's eleven is listed to play California. Other games include Stanford-Washington, Washington State-Montana, Oregon-North Dakota, St. Mary's-Gonzaga.

Down South there's another set of thrillers: Tulane-Georgia Tech, Georgia-Vanderbilt, Alabama Poly-Florida, Kentucky-V. P. I.

The Southwest, although deserted by Texas, finds a stand-out group of games on home sites: Texas Aggies-Baylor, Rice-Arizona, Southern Methodist-Centenary.

TANFORAN RACING NEWS

Nominations for the rich stakes to be run at the Tanforan meeting are coming in fast at the office of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association. There will be six major features at the session to open Friday, November sixth, varying in distance from six furlongs to nine furlongs.

Marvin L. Allen, well known breeder of San Diego, was the first to send in entries for the big races. It will be recalled that his colt Schooner won the San Bruno handicap in the fall of last year, the first stakes decided at the Peninsula track since the revival of the sport. Schooner no longer races in Allen's colors but he has other good ones of which he expects great things.

Roscoe F. Oakes, of San Francisco, who has recently entered the thoroughbred game, has nominated the clever two-year-old Desert Sun for three of the features. In addition to the Pacific Coast Breeders Association handicap and the San Mateo handicap which are exclusively for two-year-olds, Oakes has entered the bay gelding in the San Bruno handicap, which is for two-year-olds and upward.

Desert Sun was in the string that Charles A. Hartwell, his breeder, campaigned on Eastern tracks this summer and more than held his own with fleet gallopers bred in Kentucky, Maryland, New York and other states. The youngster was foaled at Santa Rita Ranch near Pleasanton and is by Easter Bells from Kitty Troxell.

Easter Bells, sire of the well-known two-year-old, was a humdinger at sprinting distances during his racing career. He contested on courses East and West in the colors of Richard F. Carman, Sr., who, it happens is coming to Tanforan with such sterling performers as Goode and Hot and other high class ones.

Besides the stakes there will be attractive handicaps of worth while value all through the meet. On Wednesday, November 11th the Armistice Day Handicap, over the Club House Course, may be expected to bring out the best horses in training. On April the 18th last the good filly Lady Seth ran the distance, which is about seven and one half furlongs in 1:3 3-5, making a new track record.

"We are making this move," the management said "in a spirit of cooperation, taking into consideration the general reduction of prices and income over our section of the state this year.

Dairymen Can Aid In Cattle Testing

Proper Preparation of Test Accessories Helps Work Of Inspectors

All owners of dairy cattle in San Mateo county can not only save time and trouble for themselves according to J. J. Garland, county milk and dairy inspector, but can assist the State Veterinarians in their work of testing the stock by providing a suiable place where animals can be easily and conveniently reached for making the test. On most farms thee are sufficient stanchions to hold the grown cattle but no place where the calves and younger animals can be held so each one can be tested.

For the young stock a narrow shoot similar to a branding shoot should be provided with wings wide enough so animals can easily be driven in to it. Such a shoot can be built along side a barn, shed or good smooth fence in which case all that is needed is to build a stretch of fence along side the part already there.

The shoot or fence should be constructed of boards nailed horizontally to posts so set as to be on the outside of the passage way. I should not be made over 24 to 26 inches wide at the gound but can widen out some what near the top. Care should be taken, however, not to have too wide or stock will attempt to turn around after entering. A place also should be provided for testing the bulls which will be strong as great danger will result in these animals can not be safely confined. However, they can be roped for testing but this generally is a long and hard job for the average dairyman.

If suitable shoots or passage-ways are provided it will save a great many hours of hard work for the cattle owner as he is required to put his stock up so they can be treated. Animals can also be handled without injury to themselves or the dairymen and with a great saving in time to every one.

The supervisors of San Mateo county have recently ordered 15,000 car tags to be used in the testing work which is scheduled to start some time during October. Cattle owners of this county are fortunate in having the State select this county as one of the first to be tested out and all should be very willing to help the veterinarians in the big job they have ahead of them in San Mateo county.

Week at the State Capital

By MELVIN LORD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 22.—(UP)—California farmers will have an opportunity to voice their opinion as to the formulation of state policies at a convention to be held here December 2, 3, and 4.

The meeting has been called by Dudley Moulton, director of the state department of agriculture. A policy of "free speech" has been adopted for the meeting, according to state officials, and it is hoped a popular agricultural program may be based on the outcome of the convention.

Details for the conference are being arranged by C. D. Cavallero, San Jose, president of the California Prune and Apricot Growers Association; Frank T. Sweet, San Francisco, president of the California Pear Growers Association, and John E. Pickett, rural press publisher of San Francisco.

Approximately ,200 men were put to work on state highway maintenance jobs October 15 as the result of a special unemployment relief program adopted by the state department of public works.

The workmen were selected by the mayors of 60 California cities. They will be given $4 a day, three days a week for several months.

The state division of architecture also announced that bids would be called late in October and early in November for building projects at state institutions totaling $4,000,000

Directors of the California state fair this week announced that next year's exposition would be held September 3 to 10.

In an attempt to halt the suspected practice of a number of oil companies of failing to pay the state tax on all of their gasoline production, J. S. Casey, chief of the state division of weights and measures, has inaugurated a careful check of the oil industry.

He announced that meters are being installed at all reineries so that no oil company will be able to deraud the state of gasoline tax payments.

Automobiles on California highways were responsible for 1,632 deaths during the first eight months of the year, the state department of motor vehicles reports. Thirty-eight counties had an increased number of fatal accidents, 16 showed reductions and nine were the same as last year.

Recognizing the importance of the relation between proper forestation and an adequate water supply, Governor Rolph appointed a watersheds committee this week to be headed by Dr. George C. Pardee of Oakland.

It will be the duty of the committee to make a thorough study of the condition of watersheds in California for the purpose of making recommendation in connection with the state-wide water program and the work of the state division of forestry.

State Shows Big Wholesale Trade

California Rated Fourth In Nation in Survey by Commerce Dept.

By MELVIN LORD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 22.—(UP)—California is the outstanding wholesale trading center west of Chicago.

Statistics on file with the state bureau of commerce show that 9,751 wholesale firms operating in the state do an annual business of approximately $4,159,323,157.

As a result of this tremendous trade, California is exceeded only by New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania and the state's total compares favorably with the United States figure of $69,490,771,331—approximately 6 per cent.

Contributing to the California total, 21 wholesale firms in San Mateo county do an annual business of $22,234,237 the report reveals.

The state's wholesale trade is concentrated mainly in six counties including San Diego, Orange, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Fresno, Alameda, San Francisco and Sacramento, virtualy all of which have direct access to waterways.

Should all of these firms suddenly quit doing business California's employment would be worse than ever inasmuch as 123,053 persons are employed and salaries and wages amounting to $219,909,186 are paid annually, it is estimated.

Incidentally, of the total employes, 22,316 are women and 100,737 are men.

San Francisco leads the state as a wholesale clearing house with an anual business of $1,784,174,952, while Los Angeles is not far behind with a total of $1,540,821,704. Alameda is third with $158,669,987.

Alpine, Sierra and Trinity counties are the only ones in the state not credited with any wholesale trade.

The estimate is based on wholesale establisments of all kinds. In addition to firms of the conventional type, the statistics cover wholesalers rendering limited services such as jobbers and cash-and-carry wholesalers.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

MENLO PARK

Wednesday afternoon a statue of St. Joseph, the patron saint of St. Joseph's school, was blessed by Archbishop E. J. Hanna, and the grotto in which the statue is placed was dedicated with appropriate ceremony. A large number of the clergy residing about the bay district assisted The school children sang sweetly while Thomas Glynn, in his best voice, rendered the familiar hymn "Ave Maria". The archbishop in a well phrazed address paid a splendid tribute to Mother Foley in whose honor the statue was installed at the parochial school by friends of the devoted sister who has been the principal of the school for a great many years. To observe her silver jubilee, some time ago, her friends had the statue manufactured in Germany and sent to this country and had it put up near the entrance to the institution last spring. It has always been the desire of the good sister to have a shrine of St. Joseph on the grounds so on Wednesday she was never so happy as when she saw the beautiful bronze representation of the devoted saint unveiled in her presence. The archbishop asserted that the parents, whose children attended the institution, were fortunate in having Mother Foley in charge of the school where the young minds of the children were properly moulded during the plastic period of their lives.

It was an eloquent tribute to a deserving woman who has and is devoting her life to the Christian training of youth that they may be good men and women, a credit to themselves, their religion and to their country. The impressions made upon the boys and girls attending the institution by the teaching of the gentle sister remain always as a guide to aid them in life's jouney, that they may arrive at their goal, heaven.

Timothy Hopkins has employed an expert gardener and a lady landscaper to lay out and improve the grounds around his estate on Ravenswood avenue. The Hopkins home is one of the show places of the peninsula.

An automobile accident occurred at the intersection of Laurel street and Oak Grove avenue Sunday that resulted in the serious injury of Mrs. Harry Albright and Mrs. Elmer Carter. The automobile driven by Harry Albright was turned over. Officer Dwyer was atX the scene at once and assisted in removing the injured from the wreck. Mrs. Albright suffered severe bruises and cuts on the head, while Mrs. Carter sustained similar injuries and suffered from the shock. Both ladies have been confined to their beds ever since. Mr. Albzright and Mr. George Angus, who were on the front seat of the car escaped uninjured.

Miss Edna Grill, the pretty and talented daughter of Constable Jack Grill, has been appointed to a clerical position in the Bank of America at Redwood City. Miss Grill is a graduate of the Sequoia high school and the junior college of Burlingame.

At a recent meeting of the city council, Mrs. Catherine Derry was presented with a beautiful policewoman's badge, suitably inscribed. The presentation was made by Mrs. Lintner, president of the Native Daughters of Menlo Park. Mrs. Derry has the distinction of being the first policewoman appointed in Menlo Park. She is a prominent figure in Native Daughter circles and is a native of the city over which she will keep a watchful eye as an officer.

The display of old photographs in the window of Fred Nessler is attracting attention of the townspeople. In looking them over one is brought back to the good old days in Menlo Park, when the citizens were happier and more contented than is the situation at the present.

Judge Hoss is rapidly becoming known as the "marrying judge." He united in marriage three couples this week. He is so gracious and gentle in tying the nuptial knot that the young people want him to perform the ceremony. Old people, too, like his method, for a pair was recently married, the man being past 70 years of age and the woman bordering that age. Perhaps the old couple figured that they could find happiness together in the twilight of life. May their dreams be realized.

On Wednesday evening, October 14, Penry DaMant of this place, and Miss Lois M. Elliott, of Palo Alto, were united in marriage in the First Baptist church of Palo Alto.

The jungle on the Hopkins estate at San Franciscquito creek, has a daily arrival of sixty-nine. What to do with these unfortunate men is a problem which both Palo Alto and Menlo Park will have to wrestle with. They must be sheltered and fed this winter. Notwithstanding the mild winter of this section, the men cannot sleep under the stars, they must be housed.

At a meeting of the planning commission, held last Monday evening, several recommendations were made to the city council. Among them are the zoning ordinance be amended to admit the building of club houses in the residential area. This will permit the building of a clubhouse on the extension of Live Oak street, for which a permit was sought from the council some time ago. A recommendation was also made that the building laws be amended, removing some of the restrictions, objectionable to prospective builders in the business districts.

NickWhalen, a local character who was supposed to have died at San Jose last month, showed up in the flesh in Menlo Park last Saturday to the surprise and delight of his many friends in his old stamping grounds. It was another Nick Whalen who passed on to the other side and not our Nick. The papers carried the story of the death and all supposed that the local man was the one who had died. A similarity of names caused the confusion.

The garden fete at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bush, Berkeley avenue, Menlo Oaks, last Sunday for the benefit of the unemployed fund was an unqualified success. About four hundred persons were present to enjoy a perfect day on the spacious grounds of the estate. Mr. Bush in a well phrazed address, welcomed the throng explaining the reason of the fete and urging all to be generous in the good cause. All the booths did a thriving business as did all other concessions. The whist game brought fans from all peninsula towns. It was much enjoyed, the warm sun bringing delight to the card players on the green lawns. The garden party will be repeated Sunday afternoon, with new features and with more enthusiasm for those who attended last Sunday are loud in their praises of the good time they had and the services rendered by the promoters of the affair. A large crowd is expected on Sunday next. Those holding coupons for the gate prizes will bring them on Sunday and maybe win a blanket or something.

Mrs. James L. Flood departed last Sunday for New York to spend the winter months with her daughter, who now resides permanently in the east. Mrs. Flood's son is a student at Yale, but will graduate next summer when he will return here to live permanently. It is likely that Mrs. Flood will hereafter spend portions of the winter in New York.

Senate Candidate Campaigning Here

Congressman Joe Crail, of Los Angeles, was in Redwood City on Tuesday interviewing Republican leaders in the interest of his campaign for United States Senator. He is an affable and genial gentleman, suave and delightful in conversation. Crail is seeking the toga now resting gently on the broad shoulders of Samuel M. Shortridge. From present indications there will be three aspirants for the senatorship from the south, while the north will present only one candidate, Samuel M. Shortridge. Under these conditions it can be easily seen who would be the victor. Mr. Shortridge has been faithful to his state at Washington, always alert in advocating its best interest. The people want to keep him there and they will show this by the big vote they are to give him next year. Crail while here acknowledged that he was in Mr. Shortridge's territory and in a community in which the the junior senator was popular, but his desire was to confer with Republican leaders to secure their opinions on the senatorship. It may be possible that Crail may retire leaving the field to Shortridge.

PARTY FOR UNEMPLOYED IS SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

The garden party held at the home of Peter Bush last Sunday afternoon for the benefit of the unemployed will be repeated Sunday afternoon when the six valuable gate prizes for the Sunday before will be awarded at 3 o'clock on the estate, Berkeley avenue, Menlo Oaks, Menlo Park. All the merchandise left over from the previous Sunday will be disposed of in the usual way, and at a reduced rate. There will be a whist game on the green lawns and valuable prizes awarded the winners. Dancing and games of all kinds have been arranged for the amusement of those who may attend. An orchestra of ten pieces is to furnish sweet music for the delectation of everyone. A musical program has also been prepared by the promoters of the affair, and will be under the direction of the Oakland Lodge of Elks. Anyone desiring an afternoon of pleasure should attend this function which is given for so worthy a cause. No admission will be charged. Parking space is to be provided on the estate. Tnis feature is to be under the supervision of the Boy Scouts of Menlo Park. Delightful refreshments are to be furnished on the spacious grounds.

Come to the Peter Bush estate, have a delightful day and aid in a deserving cause.

Louis Genochio

IN MEMORIAM

By CLAUDE FOX

It is with feelings of deep sincere regret and I must admit, with more than a tinge of sorrow, that I am again called upon to chronicle the passing into the deep shadow of a lifelong friend and companion, another of the duck hunting boys of yesterday, Louis J. Genochio.

I meditate, has fate so decreed that it will be my duty to assist in laying away in their last, long sleep all of my hunting associates in the fleeting years that have gone only too quickly. It would seem so. They are passing over the divide rapidly. God grant that it will not be so. Death leaves too much sting of grief for those who are left to mourn.

As a little boy of nine or ten years I can look backwards and see the deceased trudging after me through the marshlands, carrying my ducks and schooling himself for the sport we both loved and then in the after years I see him again grown up into strong, vigorous young manhood, still with me, bound by a friendship that was cemented and never broken for half a century.

I see him in his life at home, a devoted husband, blessed with a loving wife, carefully tending plants and shrubs in a beautiful garden, with everything to live for.

And then he is stricken with a fatal illness and passes on into eternity. Such is life. I am called upon to say to him farewell. Words that I might write or utter cannot do him justice. The best testimonials to his true worth are to be seen in the beautiful floral tributes placed around his bier by life long friends.

Bye-bye old trapper; the long stretches of the creeks and bay through which we drove your launch, the ark at Alvarado where we spent so many happy hours, the duck blinds, the old green box and the twin-barrels, where so often we waited for the first streaks of dawn and the flutter of wings the sound of which we knew so well, all of these places will know you no more, but Lou, I shall not forget and pleasant memories shall linger long over the happy days we have spent together, and until the summons comes to me and I pass over the dark trail you have just trod into eternity.

The excavations for the foundation for the addition to the court house have been made, and furnish an idea of the size of the addition. The new part will cover more ground than the old besides being two stories in height. Material for the foundation walls is already on the ground. The indications are that w ork will be pushed vigerously.

Politically Speaking

By HOMER L. ROBERTS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 22.—(UP)—Diplomatic relations between Lieutenant Governor Frank F. Merriam and Governor Rolph are likely to be severed any day.

Friends of the lieutenant governor are already beating the tomtoms for his candidacy against Rolph in 1934. And the present administration is regarding Merriam's activities—particularly his work for unemployment relief—with a none too friendly eye.

The proposal of the joint legislative unemployment committee for some sort of sales tax to raise money for unemployment relief this winter is the first target of the Rolph forces. Property owners of all kinds are already over-taxed, they insist, and now would be a poor time to load on the last straw.

When Rolland A. Vandegrit, state director of finance, returns from his tax conference at Washington, D. C., he may be expected to say a lot on this subject. Vandegrit is a tax expert, coming to his present position from the California Taxpayers' Association.

One by one, Governor Rolph is gaining control of the multitude of state borads and commissions. The state civil service commission was the latest added to his list when he named Wallace Ware, Santa Rosa attorney, as member of the civil service group to succeed David J. Reese of Ventura. Hugh B. McKevitt, a Rolph man, is president of the body. The third member is W. A. Johnstone of San Dimas, a Young appointee.

Congressman Joe Crail of Los Angeles paid a visit to Sacramento this week in company with his manager, Ross G. Marshall, Los Angeles newspaperman. Meanwhile, United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge invaded Crail's bailiwick for some campaigning on his own behalf. His visit in Hollywood reminded old-timers of an occasion when Shortridge addressed a group of clubwomen in Los Angeles.

After his address a little woman rose and addressing the senator said, "Senator Shortridge, I would like to ask how you stand on the wet and dry question?"

"Madam," the senator replied, "nobody knows how dry I am." He quickly left the platform while the hall rocked with laughter.

Plenty of fireworks are expected when two state senators start their battle for congress in one Los Angeles district. Senator Joseph L. Pedrotti and Senator George W. Rochester are both seeking the same congressional post. Pedrotti is author of the state's aviation laws, while Rochester is known as father of the "gin marriage" act.

Former Governor and Mrs. C. C. Young are now in France, and their daughters, Barbara and Lucy, reported a great time seeing "Paree." They recently bade goodbye to Governor Young's sister, Miss Lena Young, who sailed for California.

Practical Training Stressed in Schools

By MELVIN LORD

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct 22.—(UP)—Practical training is taking a more important part in the educational system of California every year.

Reports from school districts in San Mateo county and throughout the state, submitted to the state department of education show that trade and industrial classes are growing steadily.

With the increase in manufacturing ranging from an output valued at $600,000,000 in 1909 to $3,100,000,000 in 1930, an analysis prepared by the department shows there has been "a corresponding increase in the number of occupations in which organized training has been offered in the various schools under the provisions of the federal and state vocational education acts."

The day trade extension program was inaugurated in California in 1917 to increase the skill of workers during their working hours. At that time instruction was offered in two occupations, with 46 persons enrolled. This year 18 occupations are listed and 1,574 persons are enrolled in 59 different classes.

"Evening trade extension classes, organized for training persons in work supplementing their daily employment, were first organized in 1917 when an enrollment of 842 persons was reached. In 1930-31, instruction was offered in 132 occupations with an enrollment of 11,857 persons," a department report states.

A similar gain has been shown in trade preparatory classes in which 4,102 persons are now receiving instruction in 37 different occupations.

"Organized labor has become more interested in the state program of trade and industrial education during the past year because of the depression and numerous demands for special training courses have been met by the department as a means of stablizing empoyment and increasing the efficiency of employed persons," the state board of education claims.
